Monthly Support Consulting

Monthly support contracts feature regular visits by consultants who work closely with client proprietors to implement solutions. When required, we form teams to offer the right solutions to suit the client company's growth stage.

Here's what a typical Monthly Support day looks like

Visit client's premises

The day starts with a meeting with management to hear about the challenges the face, discuss strategies, and provide useful, up-to-the-minuteindustry insights.

Meet with HODs, frontline staff

We analyze their current situations, look into current and potential zones and targets, plan sales promotions, develop sales manuals, train staff through roleplaying, etc., and keep tabs on pertinent numbers. This culminates in a PDCA cycle through which they can implement the company's strategies.

Lunch

Morning visits often result in consultants having lunch with those clients. This is an ideal way to deepen communication with proprietors, executives, and employees.

Meet with proprietors and executives

A visit ends with a meeting to review the support delivered and plot a course going forward. Consultants alert proprietors and executives to potential issues noticed while on site and relay employee opinions to pave the way for swift resolution.

*Times and contents may differ depending on the consulting services purchased.
